Tuesday, November 24, 12:25 – 12:55 p.m.
Honourable Justice Murray Sinclair talks about his work with the Indian Residential Schools Truth and Reconciliation Commission.

Wednesday, November 25, 12:25 – 12:55 p.m.
GOOD MEDICINE: Exploring Health and Wellness in First Nation Albertan Communities

Collaborators:
Keyano College, Fort McMurray.
Alberta College of Art & Design, Calgary.
The Banff Centre, New Media Institute.

Alberta Association of Colleges & Technical Institutes.
Health Canada's Aboriginal Health Human Resources Initiative.

Good Medicine is an experimental documentary project commissioning five (5) First Nation filmmakers to each produce one six (6) minute short high-definition video interpreting the question: What constitutes a healthy community from First Nation Albertan perspectives? The goal of this project was to explore the breadth and myriad issues surrounding the concepts of health and wellness in the context of First Nation communities in Alberta.

In retrospect, we have to view our work as Act 1 on the way to a larger script which should entail examination of specific threads about Aboriginal human health resource careers and influences from their personal and community life experiences. "Good Medicine" is not meant to ponder the hopelessness of the future health and wellbeing of these communities, but instead act as a catalyst for dialogue and action.

Thursday, November 26, 12:25 – 12:55 p.m.
Exploring the lived experiences of current and former National Aboriginal Role Models. What does it mean to be a National Aboriginal Role Model as part of the National Aboriginal Role Model Program?