

Fletcher C, 1995 “Midwife Assisted Birth In An Institutional Health Care Setting In Hudson Bay, Nunavik Region of Quebec”. Department of Anthropology, University of Montreal, January.

Native Women’s Health Association, 1989 “Inuit Midwifery In The Inulitsivik Maternity”, August.

Bibliography Author: Vicki Van Wagner, RM, PhD(c)
A significant number of research studies have been conducted in the last two decades which support returning the responsibility for birth and perinatal care to the populations of the North. The following represent but a few of these studies.

Berry, Gil, Muller-Wille, 1989 "Wounded Native Communities". in, Revue quebecoise de psychologie, vol.10, no.1.

Bouchard F, 1986 “Having A Baby In Northern Quebec: Lessons For The Future”. Northern Project, Department of Community Health, Laval University Hospital Centre, Quebec.

Brown P et al., 1985 “Proposal For Formula To Study The Impact Of The Obstetric Evacuation Policy On Inuit Women And Their Families In The Keewatin Region, NWT”. Faculty of Medicine, Department of Social and Preventive Medicine University of Winnipeg Manitoba, December.

O’Neil J, Gilbert, P, 1990 “Childbirth In The Canadian North: Epidemiological, Clinical And Cultural Perspectives”. Northern Health Research Unit, Department of Community Health Sciences and the Faculty of Medicine, University of Manitoba.

Santé Canada, 1999 “Strategie Pour La Santé Des Femmes De Santé Canada”. Ministre de Travaux publics et Services gouvernementaux Canada, mars.

Bibliography Author: Vicki Van Wagner, RM, PhD(c)